Dialogue on Diversity presents its seventh annual colloquium exploring the past, present, and future of the internet – and the fortunes of classic privacy values in the face of the evolution in information technology. Some of the questions posed —

- What is Privacy
- Can Privacy Protections be Made Part of System Design in IT Installations, Here and Abroad – Commercial and Governmental ?
- After all disclosures to date on the scope and the quantity government surveillance, can the alert observer be certain there are no additional levels of surveillance operating?– real concern or mere conspiracy theory?
- The Convolved Economics of the Internet — Is there a Tacit Bargain: A Customized Internet Experience for Me – Paid for with My Secrets ? New Departures in Penetration, Speed, Storage Volume in the Data Collection Capabilities of Commercial Entities. Your Profile packaged by Data Brokers for their Commercial Seller Clients.
- The Moments of Privacy: The Process of Attack and Defense, the Game of Leap-Frog.
- Privacy Values and Legal Protections; Special Questions of Student Privacy, Unmanned Aircraft Surveillance, the Advancing Reach of IT Applications in the Health Care Industries;
- Medical records – Can Engineering Produce Solutions to the Privacy Conundrums?
- The Evolving Social Media – from an Informal Communicative Sharing to the Focus and Stress of a Commercial Interface. Kids Loose in the Internet Jungle – Who Will Care for Them?
- Concepts of Privacy -- A Power to Exclude Observer x at Time x from Thought and Word and Thing x of Mine? A Sensible Actor's Expectation of Privacy? The Space Walled Off for Me by a Structure of Hands-Off Rules and Regulations ? A Right of Property in Person, Personality, Thoughts, Words, and Effects?
